

A Real Sisterhood

So here I am again, overwhelmed by what God continues to do but so excited for the next move. God has given me a vision for a true Sisterhood: a network of women stretching from here to every corner of the world. A living organization of women carrying out the Great Commission with compassion and amazing love. I see a sea of women who really have each other's backs. Sisters who love across racial, socioeconomic and any other kinds of boundaries. Women who are connected through the blood of Jesus like they connect with those we share familial blood bonds with. A Real Sisterhood. A place where every woman is accepted, loved, encouraged and lifted up in prayer. A Real Sisterhood. A no condemnation zone where we are free to be the SASSY women we were created to be. A Real Sisterhood. An arena where our uniqueness is celebrated and considered a blessing. A Real Sisterhood. God's daughters being real sisters.

God made woman different for a purpose. He has set us apart for time such as this. It's time we stand in the gap for our husbands, lay hands on our children and fall on our faces for the kingdom. Rise up women of God. There's little time but much work.
